ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS SUBSIDE

Cape Town Reports Capture of the Capital of German Southwest Africa
Without Resistance; Both Allies and Germans Are Holding Firm in West.

By Associated Press.
LONDON, May 13.—The British battle ship Goliath has been torpedoed in the Bosphorus, it is feared 500 lives have been lost.

The announcement was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill. Twenty officers and 150 men of the Goliath's crew were saved.

Mr. Churchill also announced that the British submarine E-11 had penetrated the Dardanelles and into the Sea of Marmara, sinking two Turkish gunboats and a Turkish transport.

At two points on the western line of operations offensive movements are under way. The first initiated by the Germans is at the allied forces in Ypres, while the second is the pushing of French troops against the Germans to the north of Arras. For the moment, however, both of these attacks would appear to have been checked.

On the Italian front, Italian reports a brilliant success, one by the Italian attack early over the Austrian front. The Italian forces, forming their way through a series of barbed wire entanglements, dislodged the Austrians from three lines of trenches and captured 2,000 prisoners, a battery of quick guns, and several machine guns and a whole string of caissons. Italian reports that the Austro-German offensive is still proceeding in Western Galicia, while Vienna claims that the Russian front is fast becoming a point, each side suffering from the heaviest bombardments.

The anti-German rioting is dying down in England, but it is reported as continuing with great violence in South Africa. The London Daily News, which is a conservative paper, says that the rioting is preparing to end. The International of all male enemies in Great Britain, but that women and children and naturalized aliens will not be interned.

Some positive action on the part of the United States as well as on the part of Italy is awaited with the keenest impatience.

GERMAN NOTE WILL BE MADE PUBLIC TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, May 13.—President Wilson's note to Germany on the sinking of the Lusitania will be given out in Washington tonight for publication in morning papers tomorrow. It is expected that it will be between 1,200 and 1,500 words long.

Mr. Wilson this forenoon put the handling of the note, which is to be sent during the day. Few changes are believed to have been made in the note, which is expected to be delivered on Tuesday being maintained. While no word in friendly terms is true, it does not say what steps will be taken or what course will be pursued in the event of an unfavorable reply, but indicates that the United States will make no compromise either by diplomatic representations or otherwise to obtain an acquiescence in its position.

It is known positively that the United States government has had no conversation with Germany in the foreign capitals with other governments concerning the note or the course that will be pursued should Germany refuse to comply. In some quarters friendly to Germany the note is held to be a preliminary to a German ultimatum, which would be presented to the Berlin government would accede to the American demands and states the expectation that the United States would endeavor to secure the unregistered passage of food stuffs and conditional control over the civilian population of Germany.

When the note is finally dispatched to Ambassador Gerard a copy of it will be delivered here to the German embassy. It will be sent by way of Rome and Vienna and in all likelihood may be presented to the Berlin government before late tomorrow. Although no mention is made to the time when a reply is expected from the Imperial government, the belief here is that the German foreign office is realizing the state of feeling in the United States will answer promptly.

The German embassy issued this statement: "The German embassy has received the note, but no statement or information has been given by the embassy or any official of the embassy concerning what would be made to the American note regarding the Lusitania."

By Associated Press.
HARRISBURG, May 13.—All efforts to put the Senate on record as to the Lusitania disaster were stopped this morning when the Jenkins resolution appealing to the President and Congress to protect American lives and property appeared as a favorable report from the committee on foreign relations. BIG STREET CAR STRIKE

Traffic in Detroit Is Completely Tied Up by Walkout.

By Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., May 13.—Not a city street car was being operated in Detroit at 7 o'clock this forenoon as the result of a strike called by Detroit United Railway Conductors & Motormen because of the company's refusal to negotiate a motorman who had been discharged for alleged carelessness in handling of his car. The strike vote was taken during the early morning hours and was practically unanimous.

Although the walkout had been threatened for 21 hours, thousands of factory employees and downtown workmen who had depended on the street cars were from one to three hours late in reporting at their work. No disorder was in evidence when the men took their cars to the burn on the final run. Extra squads of police were called out, however, and steps taken to quell any disturbance which might arise.

BISHOP HAMILTON COMING TO BOOM CHURCH BUILDING

Will Launch Campaign for Proposed New M. E.
Church.

HAS RAISED MANY MILLIONS

Old Home Week of the Methodist Episcopal Congregation Drawing
Large Congregations Nightly; Rev.
A. J. Ashe Will Speak Tonight.

Bishop J. W. Hamilton, of Boston, will come to Connellsville on Sunday for the purpose of formally launching the campaign of the Methodist Episcopal Church for a new building. Bishop Hamilton is said to have dedicated more churches than any other bishop of the church, and during his career has raised millions of dollars for new buildings. He is one of the picturesque men of the denomination. Bishop Hamilton was for many years a resident of the Pacific Coast and was one of the leaders in the work of rehabilitating San Francisco after the earthquake. He has been active in church work for a quarter of a century, but what perhaps was his greatest work was the building of the People's Church in Boston, which was built and financed without a dollar to start.

As secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society Bishop Hamilton has also done great work among the negroes of the South.

The bishop will preach at the Methodist Church on Sunday morning and will be present at the evening service, although he will not deliver the sermon. He is expected to outline the financial campaign which is to be undertaken with a view to supplanting the present church with a new edifice.

Tonight Rev. A. J. Ashe will occupy the pulpit for the Old Home Week services. Rev. Ashe was pastor of the church for several years and was active in civic affairs during his residence in Connellsville. He was a member of the School Board for a term and served as its president. His son, S. P. Ashe, is now superintendent of the Connellsville schools.

SAFETY GATES IN WHITE

Baltimore & Ohio Adopts Uniform
Color for Crossing Appliances.

Safety gates at highway crossings of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks hereafter be painted white so that the most distinctive warning may be afforded travelers on state highways and other thoroughfares in minimizing the danger of accidents. Notices concerning the adoption of a standard color for crossing gates has been issued to the forces throughout the territory served by this railroad in connection with its campaign conducted systematically for some time past of employing watchmen in uniforms to patrol many busy highway crossings and posting warning signs to protect the public.

That nothing should be left undone in this direction, track walkers laborers and other employees have been drilled in urging upon the public utmost caution in using the highway crossings and requesting pedestrians to refrain from using the right of way as a thoroughfare.

The Baltimore & Ohio has signified also its intention to co-operate with automobile clubs, public officials and other interests by displaying signs that those approaching the tracks will have timely warning. To the extent of the railroad's responsibility it will co-operate with road commissioners and other authorities in placing warning signs on public highways adjacent to the railroad, thus taking every precaution in the prevention of accidents.

BIG MEETING IN UNIONTOWN

Enthusiasts for Better Highways to Meet Tomorrow to Outline Plan of Campaign for May 26, Set Aside by Governor as "Good Roads Day."

People of Connellsville and the surrounding territory are taking a lead in the Good Roads Day movement on May 26, said County Commissioner John H. Langley today. Commissioner Langley stated that he expects that there will be more than 2,000 persons from Connellsville, Dawson, Vanderbilt, Everson, Duphar and the township in the neighborhood of Uniontown on the roads on May 26, the day proclaimed by Governor Brumbaugh as "Good Roads Day." Tomorrow afternoon there is to be a meeting held at Uniontown for the purpose of arranging plans for the observation of the day in Fayette county.

A meeting of the county commissioners and representatives of the State Highway Department was held yesterday. George Whyte of Uniontown, general manager of the Consolidated Connellsville Coke Company and a member of the Uniontown Board of Education, was selected as chairman of the "Good Roads Day" movement. He was given an executive committee which includes some of the most prominent men in the county. The members of this committee are: J. C. Munson of Connellsville; M. E. Townsend of Perry township; Charles J. Schaefer of Dawson; Wallace Miller of Uniontown; G. B. Obey of Brownsville; Joseph Acklin of Luzerne township; and Frank Bush of Wharton township. Colley S. Baker of Uniontown was named as secretary.

County Commissioner R. L. Munson of Washington county, one of the state's most prominent men in the building of roads, and C. E. Carothers of Washington, former member of the legislature, and who has been raised in Fayette county, are expected to be here tomorrow to address the gathering and tell what Washington county has done toward making "Good Roads Day" a success. At this meeting Chairman Whyte, as chairman of the executive committee, is to name citizens committees in each township, borough and city in the county to take charge of the work. A meeting of the township supervisors is to be held next Wednesday in the courthouse and it is probable that several meetings will be held at various places throughout the county during the next week.

The county commissioners are enthusiastic over the idea of the day, and they expect to spend some time next week going about the county and assisting the various committees and supervisors toward completing the arrangements for the work.

A committee is to be appointed to assign the men who will work on the roads to the various roads on which work is needed. It was explained yesterday by Engineer Alex Gray of the State Highway Department, who was in Uniontown, that a great amount of work can be done in one day that will place the roads in good condition for the entire summer. In Washington county last year, he stated, some permanent construction was done by the citizens on "Good Roads Day."

Not only are the farmers and their employees going on the roads, but hundreds of business men in the towns and cities are expected to offer their services for the day. Some and ashes will be secured and tools for the workmen will be loaned. The various sections of the county where the men are to work on the roads.

DUGGAN URGES BONDS FOR COUNTY ROADS

At a conference of a number of automobile men this morning, Councilman John Duggan advocated a scheme for the improvement of roads in Fayette county, which he declared is the only solution of the roads problem. It is none other than to float a $1,000,000 bond issue which, he says, can be redeemed in from 15 to 20 years with a one mill tax for sinking fund.

This would give the county money for extensive new road work. On a valuation of $25,000,000, a sinking fund tax of one mill would realize enough to redeem the bonds in 20 years, or probably a few years less time. Mr. Duggan says he has advocated this to the county commissioners several times, but they so far have not favored it. He says he will take it up with them again soon and try to have some action taken.

Civil Service Bill for Third Class Cities Passes Senate.

ROUTINE MATTERS ACTED ON

Electron Bills are Not Expected to Meet Governor's Approval; House Passes the New Fish Laws; Other News of Doings at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, May 13.—A program for the remainder of the session was agreed upon at a conference of Governor Brumbaugh and Republican leaders yesterday.

The work of the compensation bills may be reported today and placed on the calendar for final passage next Monday night. Some amendments will be made.

No agreement was reached on election bills. Any measure of this character of importance will probably be vetoed by the governor.

An important amendment to be made to the compensation bills deals with awards for injuries. The bill, as drafted, provides that where an employee carries his own insurance and an award for damages is given against him, the award becomes a lien against his real estate. Attorney General Brown agrees to substitute a bond and this change will be made.

In the House the Whitten bill, extending the term of office of commissioners in the first class townships to four years, was passed.

Representative Jones of Susquehanna county introduced a bill appropriating $50,000 to reimburse counties for money expended by state treasury for making construction. The appropriation is contingent upon the decision of the Pennsylvania county court on pending legislation.

The Rinn bill, providing that one grade crossing in each 20 miles be removed by a railroad each year, was defeated by a vote of 58 yeas to 77 nays. The bill was defeated some time ago, but reconsidered.

The Senate's railway committee reported negatively the bill requiring trolley cars to be equipped with air brakes and automatic couplers. Bills requiring suburban waiting stations were also negatived.

Bills passed finally included Senate authorizing township school boards to take lands in adjoining boroughs or cities for high schools.

In the Senate the McVear bill, dividing counties into eight classes, was sent back to committees for further consideration.

The Walsh House bill, classifying the state fish and regulating their distribution, passed finally.

Uniform legislation commission bill relative to the sale of goods.

Senate bill providing compensation of judicial inheritance tax applicants.

House bill prohibiting employment in public eating houses of persons afflicted with communicable diseases.

Yare-Son bill providing for a commission to investigate the increase in cost of anthracite coal alleged to be due to imposition of anti-trust tax.

Making it offense to contribute to delinquency of any minor under jurisdiction of juvenile court.

Prohibiting persons or charitable institutions having custody of minor child under 16 years from apprehending or taking away to any person except blood relatives, without approval of juvenile court.

Making acceptable offices of commission and school directors in municipalities.

Amending the spirituous liquor department act by giving commission power to regulate employment of attaches.

The Craft bill, regulating the display or exhibit for sale of food, was defeated on final passage.

The Walton bill, authorizing a civil service board in cities of the third class to affect the appointment of persons to the police, engineering, electrical and fire departments, met with strenuous objection from Senator Hollenbeck, who alleged that as it is to take effect July 1, 1916, it is intended simply to help the officials now in office who will be candidates for reelection and want the continuance of their employees. This was denied by Senators Thompson and Clark, who said the bill had been introduced by representatives of 27 third class cities in convention. A motion to postpone consideration of the bill met with defeat, and on its final passage it was successful by 31 to 11.

WHAT TO DO FOR ITCHING SKINS

Eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning skin eruptions are so easily made worse by improper treatment that one has to be very careful. There is one method, however, that you need not hesitate to use even on a baby's tender skin—that is, the Resinol treatment. Resinol is the prescription of a British nurse doctor, put up in the form of a bland ointment and Resinol soap. This proved so remarkably successful that thousands of doctors have been prescribing it constantly for 25 years. Resinol stops itching instantly, and almost always heals the eruption quickly and at little cost. Resinol ointment and Resinol soap can be bought at any drugstore.

CLEARs BLOTCHY SKIN
Use Resinol soap for a week. You will be surprised to see how it clears and freshens your complexion, even in that short time. Use for the shampoo. It removes dirt and keeps the hair free, fresh and healthy. This is because it contains the soothing, healing and radiating.

The Cox House bill, regulating the business of loaning money to individuals, passed for funds in sums of $300 or less, and requiring the licensing of lenders, passed finally.

The Senate adopted the House resolution inviting Ambassador Nyon of Argentina to address the Legislature Tuesday afternoon next.

The Dicofender House bill, authorizing school directors to establish open air schools free of all cost to pupils, passed finally.

The administration bill, to establish a state commission of agriculture for the general supervision of the state agricultural department, passed finally and was sent to the governor.

The Thomas House bill, regulating the detention and trial of juvenile offenders, passed finally.

The Whittaker House bill to collect back money for the maintenance of inmates of insane hospitals passed finally.

CALLS ON 1915 CLASSES TO AID STARVING CHILDREN

President Elliot of Harvard Proposes Inaugurating a Unique Fundation Among Students.

BOSTON, May 13.—The thousands of classes graduating from American schools and colleges this spring are to be given a chance to concentrate their help for starving children in both America and Europe in a "Class of 1915" fund.

The movement recently undertaken by Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president of Harvard University, and a number of other eminent educators, to interest American children in some helpful angles of the war, and which has been working under the title of "The Children of America's Fund," has taken up specifically the graduating classes of 1915, and issued an appeal to class presidents, which reads as follows:

"President of 1915.

"Over six million little children are homeless and starving in this country and Europe.

"Twenty million American boys and girls in colleges and schools are forming into a great relief army under the leadership of the 'Class of 1915' to help them. They love to live just as you do but unless America gives them food they will die. Five cents worth of food will give a starving child one day's life. The cost of your class program, class banquet, or class dinner will keep many children alive. Will your class join this nation-wide movement and give at least part of your class fund this year to save their lives?"

Your class is looked up to by all lower grades, they will gladly follow your lead, and help you make the 1915 class fund the largest in the history of your school. In this time of terrible need a gift of this kind will be a lasting memorial to the generosity of your class and the finest tribute you could pay to the influence of your school and teachers.

"Send for working details to America's 'Class of 1915,' Children of America's Fund, Oak Hill, Newton Center, Mass."

RAILROADS FIGHT HARD FOR CHARGE ON SLAG TRAFFIC

They Combat Every Plan of Furnacemen Against the Tariff.

SAY MOVEMENT IS INTERSTATE

Contention Is That Commerce Commission Has Jurisdiction; Have Sought Relief Since 1904, Is Claim; Brief Filed in Third-Circuit Case.

Combating every important claim made by blast furnace interests against the proposed charge of 30 cents per ton for disposing of slag in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and points in West Virginia, the railroads have filed their reply brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Contention is being made by the carriers that since 1901 they have been trying to get relief from the burden of "wasting slag" at their expense; that the proposed charge is justified by the cost to the carrier; that utilization of refuse under present conditions does not demonstrate it is of value to the carriers; that circumstances under which the carrier accepts and disposes of refuse constitute a practice by the carrier and a service to the industry; that the carriers' transportation of the slag and other refuse material interstate and that the commission has jurisdiction to determine the rate for wasting slag and other refuse.

It is pointed out that during the period from 1890 to 1900 the railroads began to feel to an extent that the disposition of slag and other refuse material was beginning to burden them. It is now an engineering problem, the brief says, for the railroads to find a place to dispose of the material. The cost per ton to each road is set forth, the lowest being 25.23 cents on the Erie railroad, and the highest 43.1 cents on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

"Taking up the argument that the circumstances under which the carrier accepts and disposes of refuse constitute a practice by the carrier and a service to the industry, the brief makes the following points:

"The carrier supplies the car, the shipper loads slag into the car without cost to the carrier, and the carrier picks up the car at the usual place on the industry's track for receipt of freight. The industry, it is asserted, does not indicate any destination or consignee; under the proposed tariff the industries are not given authority to name any destination. Ordinarily no bill of lading is issued.

The carrier has absolute control over the movement of the property, it is explained. Contrary to statements by furnace interests, the brief says a large part of the slag moves interstate in the haul from the industry to the place where it is disposed of.

"Wasting service" is declared to be a service of transportation within the definition of the act to regulate commerce, being performed in interstate commerce with facilities of the carriers. The commission, therefore, has jurisdiction, it is maintained.

Dodge Supremacy

Probably no other car in the history of the automobile business has "made good" so thoroughly and has so quickly created a demand that is so far beyond the makers' ability to supply. Even dealers are willing to pay a "bonus" in order to get additional Dodge Cars. The following letter and telegrams will prove this and should convince you that the Dodge must be a tremendously good car in order to invoke such enthusiasm.

STANDARD AUTOMOBILE COMPANY, UNIONTOWN, PA.

PITTSBURGH, PA., April 13th, 1915.

Gentlemen—If you have any surplus stock of Dodge Brothers cars we would be pleased to take them off your hands as we cannot secure enough cars to fill our orders.

We have delivered sixty-three cars to date, some of them have gone around the three thousand mile mark with all kinds of drivers, and am pleased to tell you that we have not had a breakage. We find the car so extraordinarily good that we could use several times our allotment. We thought on account of you having other low priced cars contracted for, which you would be willing to sell, that you would not want to push the Dodge Brothers car this season and we might get your surplus cars, and would be willing to pay you a bonus to secure same.

Kindly advise us if there is any possibility of getting cars from you, and oblige,

Yours very truly,
HILAND AUTOMOBILE COMPANY,
F. D. Soupp, President.

Needless to say we were obliged to refuse the offer of the Highland Automobile Co., as the demand here has been greater than we could supply and WE TOO WERE "HUNTING" DODGE CARS AND WILLING TO PAY A BONUS, as the telegrams below will indicate.

SEEKING LIFE PRESERVER AS SHIP WENT DOWN

Two years ago I was badly run down, not able to do any work; suffered from nervousness, heart trouble, kidneys and bladder. Since using the Swamp-Root I have been relieved of all the above troubles. I cheerfully give the above testimony, and hope others may be benefited.

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers"—said one of the greatest thinkers this country ever produced.

Says the Doctor:
"After a trying day visiting my patients, a chew of PICNIC TWIST soothes my nerves and calms and fits me for the morrow."

"It is the soft, mild loaf of PICNIC TWIST that is so satisfying. It does not possess the depressing 'after effect' of dark 'heavy' tobaccos. There's the same difference between PICNIC TWIST and 'heavy' tobacco as between a good cup of just right coffee and one that is muddy and overstrong."

The sweetness of PICNIC TWIST—its long lasting chew appeals to the men who know GOOD chewing tobacco.

KING GUSTAF OF SWEDEN IS SERIOUSLY ILL

KING OF SWEDEN

LONDON, May 12.—King Gustaf was operated on for ulceration of the stomach by Professor John Wilhelm Berg, the celebrated Swedish surgeon. The operation lasted seventy-five minutes. It was said that the ulcer was more or less superficial in nature and showed no signs of being malignant. The king, after he had sufficiently recovered from the operation, went to Carlbad to recuperate. A dispatch to the Central News from Stockholm says that the king is ill again, apparently with a recurrence of the trouble for which he underwent the operation.

It looks Nice-
Yes-But How Long
Will It Stay That Way?

THAT'S the point—how long will it stay that way? All paint looks practically the same after it's put on a house—but the real test of quality comes in the period of wear, and the appearance while wearing. LAWRENCE HOUSE PAINTS come ready mixed in the purest Linseed Oil—that's why they last far longer and hold their brightness better than other paints.

Lawrence House Paints

are very economical. They not only appear well when placed upon a house, but the pure Linseed Oil from which they are made offers a perfect protection against the elements and prevents your property from looking "run down." They cost the same as other paints—but there's extra value in every gallon. If you simply mention the brand "LAWRENCE" to the painting contractor who undertakes your work, you'll not be troubled with another painting problem for a long time. —we guarantee it.

Come in and we'll show you why Lawrence House Paints are above the average in quality.

SECOND HALF CONTRACT COKE PRICES RATHER STIFFLY HELD BY OPERATORS

Unclosed Business not Big
But Producers Figure on Possible Boom.

FIGHTING LINE IS NOW $1.75

Improved Demand for Prompt Foundry
Coke Continues and Contracting Movement is Now in Full Volume.
Quality Has Much to do With Price.

From The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURGH, May 12.—A contract for about 10,000 tons monthly of furnace coke over the second half of the year has been closed, the buyer being a merchant firm in the Valley, while the seller is the same producer that has the contract at present. The price involved in the contract is not stated. There are two or three inquiries in the market for second half furnace coke but the negotiations are proceeding rather slowly. There is a very considerable difference of opinion between buyer and seller as to prices. The operators feel that at least $1.75 should be obtained for second half, and some talk considerably higher prices, but the buyer when he goes into the market starts out by insisting how much of a concession will be given from $1.75. The production and consumption of Connellsville coke is about one-half greater than it was late in the old year when contracts were made for the present half year or the whole year, and if that fact entitles the coke operator to a corresponding higher price he should easily obtain more than $1.75. Buyers, however, are disposed to make their comparisons, not with the former contract prices, but with the present particularly low prices for spot coke.

The volume of contract business to be closed for second half, with furnace coke now in operation, is not very large. At the last contracting season fully half the contracts were made for the whole year rather than the half year, and since then some of the half year contracts have been quietly extended, leaving no very large amount of business still to be done.

Further activity in the furnace coke trade will depend chiefly upon the blowing in of furnaces now idle which do not have regular supplies of their own. The pig iron market has lately shown some activity that might indicate an early blowing in of more furnaces, but much of the buying has been merely the taking up for later periods the capacity that is now engaged in making iron for early delivery. There is every assurance from present pig iron market signs that further changes will be in the direction of greater furnace activity rather than less.

The improved demand for prompt foundry coke already noted is still in evidence. Some buyers not formerly in the market are now buying a car or two a week while others have increased their weekly purchases. The contracting movement which started recently has now reached fair proportions. The buying is chiefly of the highest grade cokes, such as must be bought at the right time if the consumer is not willing to take chances on missing the coke entirely. Some of the operators are making the highest grade foundry coke are holding out for $2.50 on contracts for the twelve-month beginning July 1, but as a rule $2.25 or $2.40 can be done on such coke. One interest is endeavoring to restrict its contract sales to the second half of this year, believing that prices will be higher in the first half of next year, but consumers prefer to buy in the usual way, for a full twelve-month period. There is foundry coke of fair grade available down to $2.20 or possibly a shade less. The range in prompt coke is still greater, as there is some to be picked up at $2.00, coke that ordinarily is not purchased on contract to any extent. The market as a whole is quotable as follows:

Prompt foundry $1.20 to $1.25
Contract foundry, to July 1, $1.00 to $1.05
Contract foundry, to Jan. 1, $1.25
Prompt foundry $2.00 to $2.25
Contract foundry, to July 1, $2.25 to $2.50

The local pig iron market continues fairly active as to foundry iron in small and moderate sized lots, for prompt and forward delivery. There are no large tonnage moving transactions, iron is only in occasional quantities. The sales of blast have lately been made, involving a total of 10,000 tons, at $12.50 at Valley furnaces, the iron realizing 15 cents above the usually quoted market because a particularly low freight was involved, to a nearby point in the Valley. The market remains quotable as follows at Valley furnaces, prices 25 cents higher delivered Pittsburgh:

December $12.40
July $12.50
Nov. 2 foundry $12.75 to $13.00
Gray Forge $12.50 to $12.75
Malleable $12.75

STEEL TRADE DEVELOPMENTS DISTINCTLY SATISFACTORY

Lustrous Event Not Affecting Trade.
Our Inquiries and Pipe Line

NEW YORK, May 12.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the iron and steel situation tomorrow as follows:

The Lustrous event promised to develop business, if at all, by affecting the feelings of men rather than by affecting their judgments. Neither production nor consumption is curtailed. The recent improvement in business was not predicated upon an early termination of the war or a reduction in the estimates of war's losses, but rather occurred at a time when expectations as to the war's duration were sharply lengthening, so that the Lustrous event can hardly affect business adversely in the long run.

The developments within the steel trade in the past week have been distinctly satisfactory. Steel prices are well maintained, all things considered, and pig iron shows possibilities of early advance. The inquiries out for a total of fully 30,000 freight cars are promising some good orders in the near future. The National Tube Company has taken two pipe line orders involving about 24,000 tons. Additional ship building material has been ordered, while there has been quite an increase in the volume of plain material ordered for fabricating. The export demand continues good, while goods have been more easily obtainable and some important releases have been made so that current export shipments are particularly large.

Steel mill operations appear to have increased slightly in the past fortnight, and certainly have not decreased. The demand for steel generally that has lately been experienced promises to continue, with additions from railroad buying.

The Steel Corporation's loss of 53,395 tons in unfilled obligations during April is not an unfavorable indication. The absence of a large increase might be due, indeed, to unwillingness of the mills to book forward contracts in volume. In any event, the bookings appear to have been slightly heavier than in March.

BANK CASE DELAYED

Government Seeks Continuance in Suit Brought by Higgs Concern.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary of the Treasury W. G. McAdoo and Controller of the Currency John Skilton Williams yesterday secured another delay in the hearing of the temporary injunction secured by the Higgs National Bank of Washington to stop alleged interference of government officials with operation of the bank.

Justice McCoy of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia granted the delay upon request of Samuel C. Thompson, representing the government officials. The hearing on the rule is scheduled for Monday next. Persons who have followed the case closely say it would not be surprising if the litigation were to drag along indefinitely.

HISTORIC FLAG INCIDENTS

The Spirit of '76

THIS picture is more than an incident, it is an inspiration. It depicts the spirit which, in the trying days of our young Republic, moved men, for sheer love of Liberty and love of Country, to march unflinchingly and carry the Flag of Freedom in the face of almost certain death. Liberty was the slogan of these men—Liberty, with Death as the only alternative.

THIS is Patriotism, and Patriotism of this sort isn't dead. It but requires an OCCASION when it will be found that the American spirit—the Spirit of '76—will blossom forth as strong and virile as ever it did in the darkest days of the Revolution.

There are many occasions upon which you can show YOUR Patriotism. Not, perhaps, by deeds of blood and glory, but you can, by a simpler and yet effective way, show that the spirit of '76 is alive in YOU.

On every National, State or Civic Holiday you can

"Yes. She's really prettier than her photograph. It hardly does her justice."

"And where is she now?"

"Why are you so very inquisitive, Mr. Gregg?" laughed the handsome girl. "Have you actually fallen in love with her from her picture?"

"I'm hardly given to that kind of thing, Miss Lethecourt," I answered with mock severity. "I don't think even my worst enemy could call me a flirt, could she?"

"No. I will give you your due," she declared. "You never do flirt. That is why I like you."

"Thanks for your candor, Miss Lethecourt," I said.

"Only," she added, "you seem smitten with Elina's charms."

"I think she's extremely pretty," I remarked, with the photograph still in my hand. "Do you ever see her now?"

"Never," she replied. "Since the day I left school we have never met. She was several years younger than myself, and I heard that a week after I left Chichester her people came and took her away. Where she is now I have no idea. Her people lived somewhere in Durham. Her father was a factor."

"Then you have heard absolutely nothing as to her present position or whereabouts—whether she is married, for instance?"

"Ah!" she cried mischievously. "You betray yourself by your own words. You have fallen in love with her, I really believe, Mr. Gregg. If she knew she'd be most gratified—or at least she ought to be."

At which I smiled, preferring that she should adopt that theory in preference to any other.

She spoke frankly, as a pure honest girl would speak. She was not jealous, but she nevertheless revealed a woman who does not count such things—that I should fall in love with a friend's photograph.

There was a mystery surrounding that torn picture, of that I was absolutely certain. The remembrance of that memorable evening when I had dined on board the Lola arose vividly before me. Why had the girl's portrait been so ruthlessly destroyed? Hour by hour the mystery surrounding the Lethecourts became more inscrutable, more intensely absorbing. I had searched a copy of the London directory at the Station hotel at Chichester, and found that no house in Grosstreet was registered as occupied by the tenant of Rannoch; and, further, when I came to examine the list of guests at the castle, I found that they were really persons unknown in society. Lethecourt seemed to possess a long pocket and smiled upon these parasites, officers of doubtful commission and younger sprigs of the pseudo-aristocracy who surrounded him, while his wife, keen-eyed and of superb bearing, was punctilious concerning all points of etiquette, and at the same time indefatigable that her mixed set of guests should enjoy a really good time.

Next day I shot with the Carmichael of Crossburn, and about four o'clock, after a good day, took leave of the party in the Black Glen, and started off alone to walk home, a distance of about six miles. It was already growing dusk, and would be quite dark, I knew, before I reached my uncle's house. My most direct way was to follow the river for about two miles and then strike straight across the large dense woods, and afterwards over a wide moor full of treacherous bogs and pitfalls for the unwary.

My gun over my shoulder, I had walked on for about three-quarters of an hour, and had nearly traversed the wood, at that hour so dark that I had considerable difficulty in finding my way, when—of a sudden—I detected I distinguished voices.

I halted. Yes. Men were talking in low tones of confidence, and in that calm stillness of evening they appeared, nearer to me than they actually were.

I listened, trying to distinguish the words uttered, but could make out nothing. They were moving slowly together, in close vicinity to myself, for their feet stirred the dry leaves, and I could hear the boughs cracking as they forced their way through them.

Of a sudden, while standing there not daring to breathe lest I should betray my presence, a strange sound fell upon my eager ears.

Next moment I realized that I was at that place where Lethecourt so persistently kept his disappointed tryst, having approached it from within the wood.

The sound alarmed me, and yet it was neither an explosion of fire arms nor a startling cry for help.

One word reached me in the darkness—one single word of bitter and withering reproach.

Regardless of the risk I ran and the peril to which I exposed myself, I dashed forward with a resolve to penetrate the mystery, until I came to the gap in the rough stone wall where Lethecourt's habit was to halt each day at sundown.

There, in the falling darkness, the light that met my eyes at the spot held me rigid, appalled, stupefied.

In that instant I realized the truth—a truth that was surely the strangest ever revealed to any man.

CHAPTER V.

Contains Certain Confidences.

As I dashed forward to the gap in the boundary wall of the wood, I nearly stumbled over a form lying across the narrow path.

So dark was it beneath the trees that at first I could not plainly make out what it was until I bent and my hands touched the garments of a woman. Her hat had fallen off, for I felt it beneath my feet, while the cloak was a thick woolen one.

Was she dead, I wondered? That cry—that single word of reproach—sounded in my ears, and it seemed plain that she had been struck down ruthlessly after an exchange of angry words.

I felt in my pocket for my vestas, but unfortunately my box was empty. Yet just at that moment my strained ears caught a sound—the sound of someone moving stealthily among the fallen leaves. Seizing my gun, I demanded who was there.

There was, however, no response. The instant I spoke the movement ceased.

It seemed evident that a tragedy had occurred, and that the victim at my feet was a woman. But who?

Of a sudden, while I stood hesitating, blaming myself for being without matches, I heard the movement repeated. Someone was quickly receding—escaping from the spot. I sprang through the gap, straining my eyes into the gloom, and as I did so could just distinguish a dark figure receding quickly beneath the wall of the wood.

In an instant I dashed after it. Down the steep hill to the seawater I followed the fugitive, crossing the old footbridge near Penpont, and then up a wild winding glen towards the Catmora of Dugh. For a couple of miles or more I was alone, until, at a turn in the dark wooded glen where it branched in two directions, I lost all trace of the person who flew from me. Whoever it was they had very cleverly gone into hiding in the undergrowth of one or other of the two glens—which, I could not decide.

I stood out of breath, the perspiration pouring from me, undecided how to act.

Was it Lethecourt himself whom I had surprised?

That idea somehow became impressed upon me, and I suddenly resolved to go boldly across to Rannoch and ascertain for myself. Therefore, with the excuse that I was belated on my walk home, I turned back down the glen, and half an hour afterwards entered the great well-lighted hall of the castle where the guests, ready dressed, were assembling prior to dinner.

I was welcomed warmly, and just then Lethecourt himself joined his guests, ready dressed in his dinner jacket, having just descended from his room.

"Halloa, Gregg!" he exclaimed heartily, holding out his hand. "Had a long day of it, evidently. Good sport with Carmichael—eh?"

"Very fair," I said. "I remained longer with him than I ought to have done, and have got belated on my way home, so looked in for a refresher."

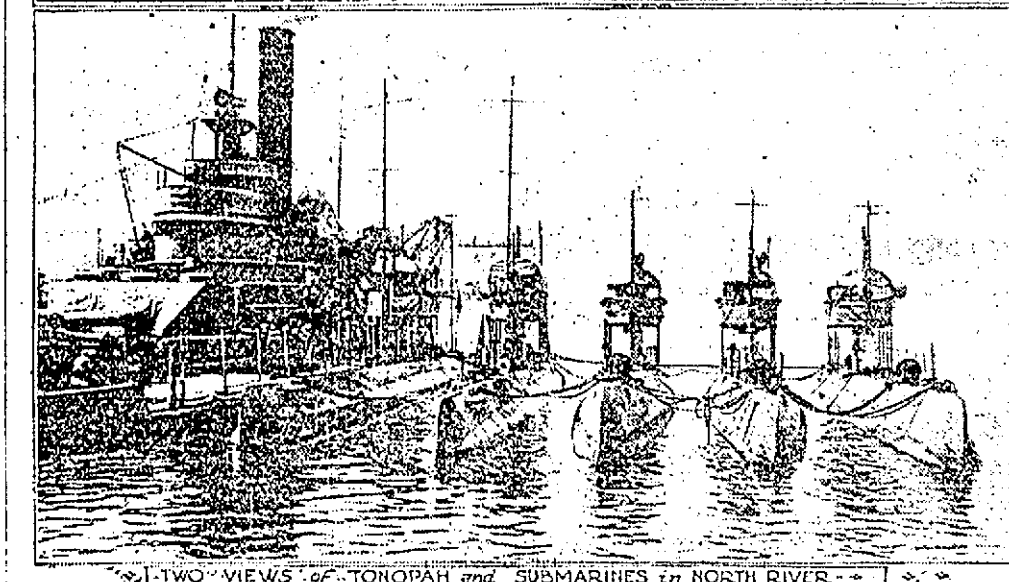

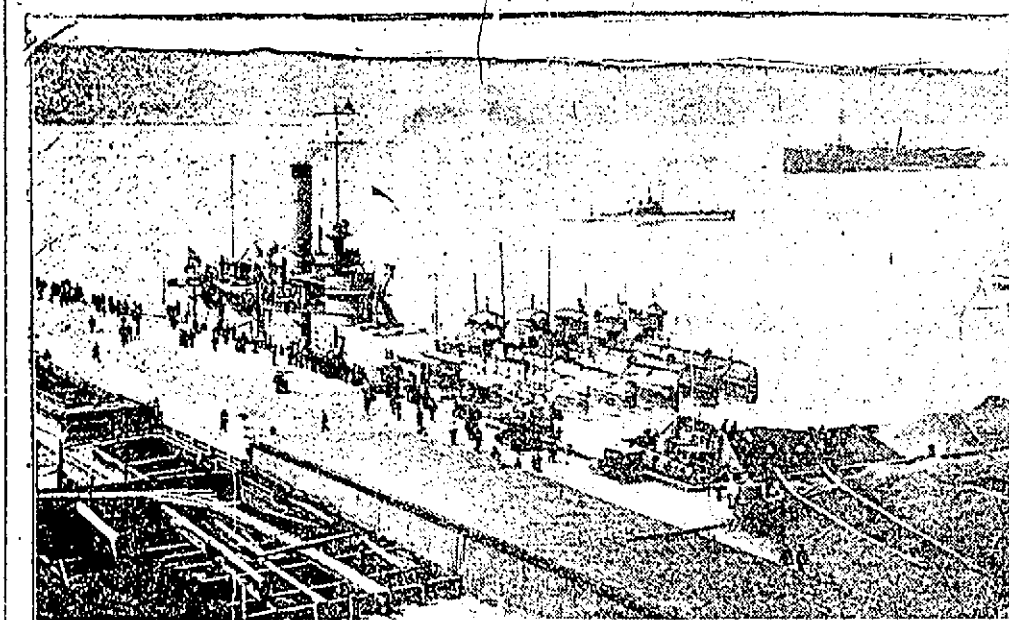

"Quite right," he laughed merrily. "You're always welcome, you know. I had been annoyed if I knew you had passed without coming in."

And Muriel, a pretty figure in a low-cut gown of turquoise chiffon, standing behind her father, smiled secretly at me. I smiled at her in return, but it was a strange smile, I felt, for with the knowledge of that additional mystery within me—the mystery of the woman lying unconscious or perhaps dead, up in the wood—held me stupefied.

I had suspected Lethecourt because of his constant trysts at that spot, but I had at least proved that my suspicions were entirely without foundation. He could not have gone home and dressed in the time for I had taken the nearest route to the castle while the fugitive would be compelled to make a wide detour.

I only remained a few minutes, then went forth into the darkness again, utterly undecided how to act. My first impulse was to return to the woman's aid, for she might not be dead after all.

And yet when I recollected that hoarse cry that rang out in the darkness, I knew too well that she had been struck fatally. It was this latter conviction that prevented me from turning back to the wood. You will perhaps blame me, but the fact is I feared that if I went there suspicion might fall upon me, now that the real culprit had so ingeniously escaped.

Whether or not I acted rightly in remaining away from the place, I leave it to you to judge in the light of the amazing truth which afterwards transpired.

I decided to walk straight back to my uncle's, and dinner was over before I had had my tub and dressed. Next day the body would surely be found; then the whole countryside would be filled with horror and surprise. Was it possible that Lethecourt, that calm, well-groomed, distinguished-looking man, held any knowledge of the ghastly truth? No. His manner as he stood in the hall chatting gayly with me was surely not that of a man with a guilty secret. I became firmly convinced that although the tragedy affected him very closely, and that it had occurred at the spot which he had each day visited for some mysterious purpose, yet up to the present he was in ignorance of what had transpired.

But who was the woman? Was she young or old?

A thousand times I regretted bitterly that I had no matches with me so that I might examine her features. Was the victim that sweet-faced young girl whose photograph had been so ruthlessly cast from its frame and destroyed? The theory was a weird one, but was it the truth? I retired to my room that night full of fevered apprehension. Had I acted rightly in not returning to that lonely spot on the brow of the hill? Had I done as a man should do in keeping the tragic secret to myself?

At six I shaved, decanted, and went out with the dogs for a short walk; but on returning I heard of nothing unusual, and was compelled to remain inactive until near midday.

I was crossing the stable yard where I had gone to order the carriage for my aunt, when an English groom, suddenly emerging from the harness room, touched his cap, saying:

"Have you 'eard, sir, of the awful affair up yonder?"

"Of what?" I asked quickly.

"Well, last night, seems to have been a murder laid right up in Rannoch wood," said the man quickly. "Holden, the gardener, has just come back from that village and says that Mr. Lethecourt's under gamekeeper as he was going home at five this morning came upon a dead body."

"Call Holden. I'd like to know all he's heard," I said. And presently, when the gardener emerged from the greenhouse, I sought of him all the particulars he had gathered.

"I don't know very much, sir," was the man's reply. "I went into the inn for a glass of beer at eleven, as I always do, and heard them talking about it. A young man was murdered last night up in Rannoch wood."

"The body was that of a man?" I asked, trying to conceal my utter bewilderment.

Was She Dead? I Wondered.

"Yes—about thirty, they say. The police have taken him to the mortuary at Dumfries, and the detectives are up there now looking at the spot, they say."

A man! And yet the body I found was that of a woman—that I could swear.

After lunch I took the dogcart and drove alone into Dumfries.

The police constable on duty at the town mortuary took me up a narrow alley, unlocked a door, and I found myself in the cold, gloomy chamber of death. From a small dingy window above the light fell upon an object lying upon a large slab of gray stone and covered with a soiled sheet.

The policeman lifted the end of the sheet, revealing to me a white, hard-set face, with closed eyes and drooping jaw. I started back as my eyes fell upon the dead countenance. I was entirely unprepared for such a revelation. The truth staggered me.

The victim was the man who had acted as my friend—the Italian waiter, Olinto.

I advanced and peered into the thin, luminous features, scarce able to realize the actual fact. But my eyes had not deceived me. Though death distorts the facial expression of every man, I had no difficulty in identifying him.

"You recognize him, sir?" remarked the officer. "Who is he? Our people are very anxious to know, for up to the present moment they haven't succeeded in establishing his identity."

"I will see your inspector," I answered with as much calmness as I could muster. "Where has the poor fellow been wounded?"

"Through the heart," responded the constable, as tapping the great farther down he showed me the small knife wound which had penetrated the victim's jacket and vest full in the chest.

"This is the weapon," he added, taking from a shelf close by a long, thin dagger with an ivory handle, which he handed to me.

In an instant I recognized what it was, and how deadly. It was an old Florentine misericorde, with a bit of yellow ivory, the most deadly and fatal of all the daggers of the middle ages. It was still blood-stained, but as I took the deadly thing in my hand I saw that its blade was beautifully damascened, a most elegant specimen of a medieval arm. Yet surely none but an Italian would use such a weapon.

Or would aim so truly as to penetrate the heart. And yet the person struck down was a woman and not a man!

I looked again for the last time upon the dead face of the man who had served me so well, and yet who had ended me so nearly to my death. In the latter incident there was a deep mystery. He had relented at the last moment, just in time to save me from my secret enemies.

Could it be that my enemies were his? Had he fallen a victim by the same hand that had attempted so ingeniously to kill me?

Why had Lethecourt gone so regularly up to Rannoch wood? Was it in order to meet the man who was to be entrapped and killed? What was Olinto Santini doing so far from London, if he had not come expressly to meet someone in secret?

With my own hand I recovered the face with the sheet. I accompanied the constable to the inspector's office some distance across the town.

Having been introduced to the big, fair-haired man in a rough tweed suit, who was apparently directing the inquiries into the affair, he took me eagerly into a small back room and began to question me. I was, however, wary not to commit myself to anything further than the identification of the body.

"The fact is," I said confidentially, "you must omit me from the witnesses at the inquest."

"Why?" asked the detective suspiciously.

"Because if it were known that I have identified him all chance of getting at the truth will at once vanish," I answered. "I have come here to tell you in strictest confidence who the poor fellow really is."

"Then you know something of the affair?" he said, with a strong Highland accent.

"I know nothing," I declared. "Nothing except his name."

"If he was a foreigner?"

"An Italian—eh?"

"He was in my service in Leith for several years, and on leaving he came to London and obtained an engagement as waiter in a restaurant."

"His father lived in Leith, was he?"

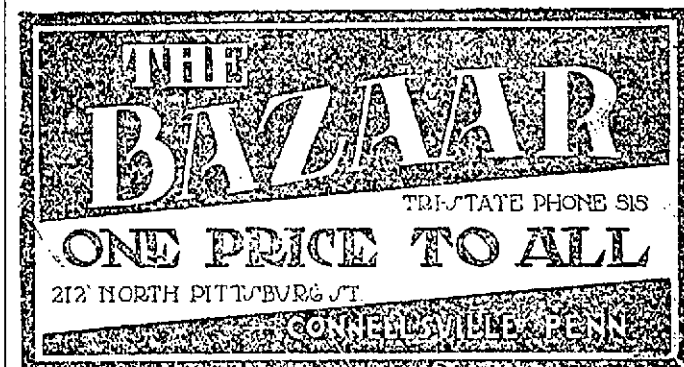

"The father was he here in Scotland?"

"How can I tell?"

"You know something of the affair, then? Do you suspect somebody, or would you have no objection to giving evidence at the inquest?"

"I have no suspicions. To me the affair is just as much of an enigma as to you," I hesitated at once to claim. "My only fear is that if the assassin knew that I had identified him he would take care not to betray himself."

"You therefore think he will betray himself?"

"I hope so."

"By the fact that the man was attacked with an Italian stiletto, it would seem that his assailant was a fellow-countryman," suggested the detective.

"The evidence certainly points to that," I replied.

"Someone who waited for him on the edge of that wood and stopped out and killed him—that's evident," he said, "and my belief is that it was an Italian."

"There were two foreigners who slept at a common lodging house two nights ago and went on tramp towards Glasgow. We have telegraphed after them and hope we shall find them. Scotsmen or Englishmen never use a knife of that pattern."

"I know not whom to suspect," I declared. "It is a mystery why the man who was once my faithful servant should be enticed to that wood and stabbed to the heart."

"There is no one in the vicinity who know him?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"We might obtain his address in London through his father in Leith," suggested the officer.

"I will write today if you so desire," I said readily. "Indeed, I will get my friend the British consul to go round and see the old man and telegraph the address if he obtains it."

"Capital!" he declared. "If you will do us this favor we shall be greatly indebted to you. It is fortunate that we have established the victim's identity—otherwise we might be entirely in the dark. A murdered foreigner is always more or less of a mystery."

Therefore, then and there, I took a sheet of paper and wrote to my old friend Hutcheson at Leith, asking him to make immediate inquiry of Olinto's father as to his son's address in London.

We sat for a long time discussing the strange affair. In order to betray no eagerness to get away, I offered the big Highlander a cigar from my case and we smoked together. The inquiry would be held on the morrow, he told me, but as far as the public was concerned the body would remain as that of some person "unknown."

"And you had better not come to my uncle's house, or send anyone," I said. "If you desire to see me, send me a line and I will meet you here in Dumfries. It will be safer."

The officer looked at me with those keen eyes of his, and said:

"Really, Mr. Gregg, I can't quite make you out. I confess. You seem to be apprehensive of your own safety. Why?"

"One never knows whom one offends when living in Italy," I laughed, as lightly as I could, endeavoring to allay his suspicion. "He may have fallen beneath the assassin's knife by giving a small and possibly innocent offense to somebody. Italian methods are not English, you know."

"By Jove, sir, and I'm jolly glad they're not!" he said. "I shouldn't think a police officer's life is a very safe one among all those secret murder societies I've read about."

"Ah! what you read about them is often very much exaggerated," I assured him. "It is the vendetta which is such a stain upon the character of the modern Italian; and depend upon it, this affair in Rannoch wood is the outcome of some revenge or other—probably over a love affair."

"But you will assist us, sir?" he urged. "You know the Italian language, which will be of great advantage besides, the victim was your servant."

"Be discreet," I said. "And in return I will do my very utmost to assist you in hunting down the assassin."

And thus we made our attempt. Half an hour after I was driving in the dogcart through the pouring rain up the hill out of gray old Dumfries to my uncle's house.

As I descended from the cart and gave it over to a groom, old Davis, the butler, came forward, saying, in a low voice:

"There's Miss Lethecourt waiting to see you, Mr. Gordon. She's in the morning room, and been there an hour. She asked me not to tell anyone else who's here, sir."

I walked across the big hall, and along the corridor to the room the old man had indicated.

As I opened the door, and Mr. Lethecourt in plain black rose to meet me, I plainly saw from her white, haggard countenance that something had happened—that she had been forced by circumstances to come to me in strictest confidence.

Was she, I wondered, about to reveal to me the truth?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Her Knowledge of Music.

The names of musical compositions do not always convey the impression that is intended by their composers, as one listener discovered recently at a San Francisco concert. One woman was much interested in the music and sat as close to the orchestra as possible, attentively listening to every note. A popular air had just been played. It was a catchy, melodious bit of music and was received with warm applause. Immediately following it on the program was Dvorak's "Humoresque," and the attentive listener drew back in disgust. "Just think," she said in tones loud enough to be heard by those near by—"just imagine playing something humorous after that other beautiful piece. It ought not to be allowed."—Argonaut.

WIMLER READY FOR SCRAP WITH PATSY BRANNIGAN TONIGHT

Both Boys in Town Looking in Very Best of Condition.

FAST PRELIMINARIES, TOO

Josh Cole of Mount Braddock to Meet
Joe Mullen of Trotter; Pat Yates and Terrell Duncan to Stage Return
Box and Towel to Face Kartsch.

Patsy Brannigan and Eddie Wimler, who are to meet in the main event of the boxing show before the Conneltsville Athletic Club, are in town, both in fine shape for the scrap of their lives.
They have fought four times before and will put on a clash among the crowd tonight.

There is every indication of a big crowd, for beside the class within, there are three other good bouts scheduled. Terrell Duncan of Uniontown, the clever black boxer, is to meet Pat Yates of Scotland in a re-

PATSY BRANNIGAN.

turn match. Yates was knocked out by Duncan at the last show, but he has been training hard for this show and will make his opponent stop soon.

Johnny Powell of Wheeler is to meet Joe Kartsch of Braddock. This should be an especially good one, as it will bring together two likely sound-bater and give Powell a chance to show what he can do against an opponent his own weight.

Josh Cole of Mount Braddock and Joe Mullen of Trotter should furnish excitement in the preliminary.
Eddie Wimler, who boxed Brannigan, has been fighting for two years.
He has met some of the best boys in his class and defeated a good many of them. Boxing experts speak of him as a boxer and fighter, always willing to mix it up, and he will be the main event here. What a scrap Brannigan is from his showing against Jimmy McGow.

TO CRASH OPEN SEASON.

Time of the 1915 Season.

most interesting ever played on the Smithton grounds. Smithton won a previous game with the Independents, 3 to 2, and the locals are out for revenge. "The locals will," Smithton

WEAK AND TIRED FOR MANY MONTHS FINDS NEW HEALTH

Stomach and Nerve Trouble Wreck Health of Sufferer Many Months.

HIS EFFICIENCY IS IMPAIRED

Inter-State Doctors Restore Him to Normal Health and Win Much Credit.

Sick people are prone to imagine that their illness does only damage to their physical being. It is not so, and women who work it means a decrease in earning power, for they cannot do justice to the work at hand, nor command the salary normally due them.
The following testimonial given the Inter-State Doctors, who have their famous medical institute on the corner of Pittsburgh and Apple streets, over the Citizens National Bank Building, is a case of this kind:

"September 26, 1914.
"I had been sick with stomach trouble, nerve trouble, obstinate constipation and was generally weak and tired for the last 18 months.
This made me very uncomfortable, almost miserable and impaired my efficiency and power of concentration to such an extent that I often felt as if I didn't care what happened.
"Two months ago I went to the Inter-State Doctors and now I am certainly glad of it for my troubles are gone. I feel like a full of courage and ambition in life and ready to tackle any task before me as only a person in good health is able to do.
"I wish this statement given wide publicity, so it reaches many sufferers like me who have the way where to go for relief or a cure.
"(Signed), George Shimmer,
"1105 Jenny Lind St.,
"McKeesport, Pa."

The Inter-State Doctors' office hours are from 9 A. M. to 12 noon; 1:30 to 5 P. M., and evenings 7 to 9. Sunday hours are from 9 to 12 noon only.
Sick and ailing people cannot do better than by consulting the Inter-State Doctors immediately. Consultation is always confidential.—Adv.
